RELIEF, NEPBA LOCAL 22 PURSUANT TO RULE 16(4) (b) .

SUMMARY OF ARGUMENT

Notwithstanding the multiple invitations urging this Court to effectively legislate the central issue in this matter, the Court must stay its course. This Court should adhere to its long-standing precedent that categorically excludes records, such as the internal affairs investigatory files and other personnel files at issue in this case, from disclosure under the Right-to-Know law. The appellants offer no compelling or proper justification to overturn this Court's reasoned interpretation of RSA 91-A. The legislature has tacitly approved the Court's precedent and amended the Right-to-Know law numerous times without correcting or addressing this Court's express interpretation of legislative intent in Union Leader Corp v. Fenniman, 136 N.H. 624 (1993). Moreover, the issue is the subject of current pending legislative activity and is therefore held particularly firm within the grip of stare decisis. The materials sought by the Defendants are "internal personnel practices" and are therefore exempt from disclosure pursuant to RSA 91-A:5.

ARGUMENT

THE TRIAL COURT PROPERLY APPLIED THE EXEMPTION FOR "INTERNAL PERSONNEL PRACTICES" IN RSA 91-A:5

A. LONG-STANDING PRECEDENT COMPELS AFFIRMANCE OF THE TRIAL COURT'S DECISION

At issue in this case is RSA 91-A:5, which provides an exemption to the Right-to-Know law for:

Records pertaining to internal personnel practices; confidential, commercial, or financial information; test questions, scoring keys, and other examination data used to administer a licensing examination, examination for employment, or academic examinations; and personnel, medical, welfare, library user, videotape sale or rental, and other files whose disclosure would constitute invasion of privacy. Without otherwise compromising the confidentiality of the files, nothing in this paragraph shall prohibit a public body or agency from releasing information relative to health or safety from investigative files on a limited basis to persons whose health or safety may be affected.

RSA 91-A:5, IV.

The analysis of this Court's treatment of RSA 91-A:5, IV begins with Union Leader Corp. v. Fenniman, 136 N.H. 624 (1993) and Hounsell v. N. Conway Water Precinct, 154 N.H. 1 (2006). Despite the Appellants' hallow urgings, both cases remain good law, were correctly decided and compel the affirmance of the trial court's order.

In Fenniman, the plaintiff newspaper requested disclosure of "certain investigatory documents under the control of" the Dover Police Department and its chief. 136 N.H. at 625. The documents in question were generated and "compiled during an internal investigation of a department lieutenant accused of making harassing phone calls." Id. This Court, as a matter of first impression, found that the police investigatory files at issue were exempted from disclosure as they "plainly 'pertain[] to internal personnel practices' because they document procedures leading up to internal personnel discipline, a quintessential example of an internal personnel practice." Id. at 626.

In support of its conclusion, the Court extensively analyzed the legislature's intent in enacting RSA 91-A:5. The Fenniman Court observed as follows:

At the same time the legislature was considering passage of what is now RSA 516:36, II (Supp.1992), it was also overhauling RSA chapter 91-A into its modern form.... Moments after Representative Donna Sytek gave the judiciary committee's report on the Right-to-Know bill, she gave a report from the same committee on what is now RSA 516:36, II (Supp.1992). Speaking in favor of the latter bill, she stated: "[It] provides that proceedings of internal police investigations may not be introduced as evidence in a civil suit other than a disciplinary action. Protection for these files, which will remain confidential under the Right-to-Know law will encourage thorough investigation and discipline of dishonest or abusive police officers." ... Representative Sytek's remarks indicate an assumption that RSA chapter 91-A exempted police internal investigatory files from public disclosure. As there have been no relevant changes to the Right-to-Know Law since 1986, we must honor the expressed intent of the legislature as expressed in the statute itself and reverse the superior court's ruling. Although we have often applied a balancing test to judge whether the benefits of nondisclosure outweigh the benefits of disclosure, such an analysis is inappropriate where, as here, the legislature has plainly made its own determination that certain documents are categorically exempt.

Id. at 627 (internal citations omitted) (emphasis in original). Accordingly, the Court refused to allow disclosure of the records.

Thereafter, in Hounsell, the Court considered whether an investigative report prepared by outside investigators hired by the water precinct was properly subject to disclosure under the Right-to-Know law. 154 N.H. at 2-3.

More specifically, the case involved an investigation following an allegation by an employee "that he had been threatened and harassed by a co-worker." The precinct's legal counsel retained outside investigators to investigate the allegations. Id. at 2. The investigators interviewed witnesses and then prepared a report containing a summary and "findings and recommendations." Id. This Court upheld the trial court's refusal to produce the investigative report, holding as follows:

We agree with the trial court that the Hunt-Alfano report concerned "internal personnel practices." It is undisputed that the precinct retained Hunt and Alfano to investigate a complaint that [employee] had threatened and harassed a co-worker. During the investigation, the precinct placed [the employee] on paid leave, and the investigation could have resulted in disciplinary action.

Thus, as in Fenniman, the Hunt-Alfano report, which was generated in the course of an investigation of claimed employee misconduct, was a record pertaining to "internal personnel practices."

Id. at 4. The Court expressly rejected the plaintiff's contention that "the investigation lost its 'internal status' because the precinct contracted with outside investigators." Id. at 5. Importantly, the Court reiterated one principle, legislatively adopted policy--first recognized in Fenniman--underlying the exemption:

that the disclosure of records underlying, or arising from, internal personnel investigations would deter the reporting of misconduct by public employees, or participation in such investigations, for fear of public embarrassment, humiliation, or even retaliation.

Id.

Two recent cases round out the Court's most relevant analysis regarding RSA 91-A:5, IV. In Reid v. N.H. Attorney Gen., 169 N.H. 509 (2016), the Court considered whether records related to the Attorney General's investigation into alleged wrongdoing by a former county attorney were subject to exemption from disclosure pursuant to RSA 91-A:5, IV. The Reid Court set about to more precisely define the term "internal personnel practices." Id. at 522. In this regard, the Court cited with approval a United States Supreme Court case defining "personnel" as "the selection, placement, and training of employees and the formulation of policies procedures, and relations with [or involving] employees or their representatives." Id. (quoting Milner v. Dep't of Navy, 562 U.S. 562, 569 (2011)). "[A]n agency's personnel rules and practices, for purposes of exemption 2 of the FOIA, are its rules and practices dealing with employee relations or human resources. They concern the conditions of employment in federal agencies--such matters as hiring and firing, work rules and discipline, compensation and benefits." Id. at 522-23 (quoting Milner, 562 U.S. at 570) (internal quotations omitted).

The Court then concluded that "internal personnel practices" are "practices that "exist or are situated within the limits of employment." Id. at 523 (internal quotations and citations omitted). Importantly, the Reid Court reaffirmed its holdings from Fenniman and Hounsell that investigations and documents surrounding individual employee misconduct are a "personnel practice" under the categorical exemption. Id. at 523. The Court, however, clarified "that [to be 'internal' and therefore within the purview of the exemption] the investigation must take place within the limits of an employment relationship." Id. After finding that the county attorney was not an "employee" of the attorney general and that the relationship between the attorney general and a county attorney "lacks the usual attributes of an employer-employee relationship," the Court concluded that the requested investigatory records did not fall within the "internal personnel practices" exemption of RSA 91-A:5, IV. Id. at 525.

Instead of the categorical exemption from production afforded by the "internal personnel practices" exemption, the issue was analyzed under the balancing test portion of RSA 91-A:5 that exempts "personnel, medical ...and other files whose disclosure would constitute invasion of privacy." Id. at 526. Because the trial court's decision had been based exclusively on the "internal personnel practices" exemption, the Court remanded the case for the parties to litigate the balancing test. Id. at 527.²

² The Court provided guidance for the parties and the trial court in applying this balancing exemption. The determination of whether the materials are subject to the exemption for "personnel...files whose disclosure would constitute an invasion

Most recently, in Clay v. City of Dover, 169 N.H. 681 (2017), this Court again considered the reach of the "internal personnel practices" categorical exemption.³ In Clay, the petitioner sought production of written evaluation forms completed by members of the defendants' search committee during evaluation of candidates for the position of superintendent. Id. at 683. The Court noted that the forms related to hiring "which is a classic human resources function." Id. at 686. The Court also concluded the forms were "internal" and expressly rejected the plaintiff's contention that the forms were not internal because no employment relationship existed between the candidates and the defendant school district. Id. at 688. The Court found the distinction "immaterial" as the documents were generated during the hiring process, which of privacy" requires a two-part analysis of: "(1) whether the material can be considered a "personnel file" or part of a "personnel file"; and (2) whether disclosure of the material would constitute an invasion of privacy." Reid, 169 N.H. at 527. Whether disclosure triggers an invasion of privacy requires its own three-part test as announced by the Court:

first, we evaluate whether there is a privacy interest at stake that would be invaded by the disclosure. Second we address the public's interest in disclosure. . . . Finally, we balance the public interest in disclosure against the government's interest in nondisclosure and the individual's privacy interest in nondisclosure.

Id. at 528-29.

³ In doing so, the Court, again, reaffirmed that the "internal personnel practices" exemption is a categorical one-refusing to consider petitioner's argument to the contrary because Reid "foreclose[d] that contention." Clay, 169 N.H. at 685.

was internal to the search committee and conducted on behalf of the superintendent's employer. Id.

There can be no legitimate dispute that the materials sought in this matter fall squarely within the "internal personal practices" exemption. Internal affairs proceedings and information regarding alleged police detail and regular shift overlap are quintessential examples of internal human resources practices situated within the limits of the employment relationship. Indeed, the trial court-obviously not a fan of the applicable law-conceded that "[a]rguably the entire Internal Affairs Practices" section of the audit report could be squeezed in to the [exemption]" and that the "the Time and Attendance audit is a more classical 'internal police practices' record." Final Order at 4-5. The redacted records sought by the appellants on appeal are exempted from disclosure and the trial court's order was proper. ⁴

B. THIS COURT SHOULD NOT DISTURB ITS HOLDINGS IN FENNIMAN, HOUNSEL AND THEIR PROGENY.

The Court is "bound by the law as set forth in [its] past cases." Ridlon v. N.H. Bureau of Sec. Reg., No.2018-0035, 2019 WL 3311343, at *6 (N.H. July 24, 2019). "The doctrine of stare decisis demands respect in a society governed by the rule of law, for when governing legal standards are open to revision in every case, deciding cases becomes a mere exercise of judicial will with arbitrary and unpredictable results." Ford v. N.H. Dep't of Transp., 163 N.H. 284, 290 (2012) (quoting Jacobs v. Dir., N.H. Div. of Motor Vehicles, 149 N.H. 502, 504 (2003)). "[W]hen asked to reconsider a holding, the question is not whether [the Court] would decide the issue differently de novo, but whether the ruling has come to be seen so clearly as error that its enforcement was for that very reason doomed." Id. (quoting State v. Quintero, 162 N.H. 525, 539 (2011)). To the contrary, "[j]udges are not at liberty to follow prior decisions that are well-reasoned and discard those that are not." Quintero, 162 N.H. at 439.

⁴ The appellants' contentions that the Audit Report was not created for a human resources purpose is inapposite. It is obvious that the referenced IA files and the overtime detail information were created by the employer or its agent only for the purpose of evaluating employees' behavior within the employment relationship.

"Indeed, principled application of stare decisis requires a court to adhere even to poorly reasoned precedent in the absence of 'some special reason over and above the belief that a prior case was wrongly decided.'" Id. (quoting State v. Gubitosi, 152 N.H. 673, 678 (2005)).

As a result, the Court will overturn its precedential decisions only after considering the following four factors:

(1) whether the rule has proven to be intolerable simply by defying practical workability; (2) whether the rule is subject to a kind of reliance that would lend a special hardship to the consequence of overruling; (3) whether related principles of law have so far developed as to have left the old rule no more than a remnant of abandoned doctrine; and (4) whether facts have so changed, or come to be seen so differently, as to have robbed the old rule of significant application or justification.

Id. None of these factors weigh in favor of this Court overturning decades worth of precedent merely for the sake of changing the result in this case.⁵

The appellants' superficial application of these factors boils down to no more than a disagreement with the reasoning of this Court in Fennimen and Hounsell. That is flatly insufficient to call for the upending of decades of precedent.⁶ See Quintero, 162 N.H. at 540 ("While poor reasoning does trigger the stare decisis analysis, poor reasoning is not a separate factor to consider when determining whether special justification for departing from precedent exists."). In any case, the decisions were decided correctly in light of the stated legislative intent as discussed at length in Fenniman. Moreover, where cases center on statutory construction, as is the case here, "considerations of stare decisis weigh heavily ...[because the legislative body] is free to change this Court's interpretation of its legislation." Pearson v. Callahan, 555 U.S. 223, 233 (2009) (quoting Illinois Brick Co. v. Illinois, 431 U.S. 720, 736 (1977)); Watson

⁵ Moreover, this Court's holdings in Fennimen and Hounsell are clearly not unworkable, and Courts have applied them approvingly for more than a decade and as recently as this year. See, e.g., Berry v. N.H. Dep't Corr., N6. 2018-0411, 2019 WL 1177924, at *2 (N.H. Feb. 28, 2019); Clay, 169 N.H. at 686-87; Montenegro v. City of Dover, 162 N.H. 641, 649- 50 (2011); Duquette v. Forest, No. 2004-0760, 2005 WL 8142450 (N.H. Dec. 5, 2005); Pivero v. Largy, 143 N.H. 187, 191 (1998).

⁶ Indeed, even if this Court were to echo the critical sentiment of the Reid Court in regard to the reasoning and conclusions drawn in Fenniman and Hounsell, there is no legitimate basis for over-turning such decisions without more.

v. United States, 552 U.S. 74, 83 (2007) ("A difference of opinion within the Court ... does not keep the door open for another try at statutory construction, where stare decisis has 'special force [since] the legislative power is implicated, and Congress remains free to alter what we have done.'" (quoting Patterson v. McLean Credit Union, 491 U.S. 164, 172-73 (1989))).

In the face of the appellants' empty pleas for this Court to correct what it believes the legislature did or did not intend in enacting RSA 91-A:5, the legislature has assuredly spoken. RSA 91-A:5 has been amended no less than eight times since this Court rendered its decision in Fenniman. See 2019, 54:1, eff. Aug. 4, 2019; 2018, 91:2, eff. July 24, 2018; 2016, 322:3, eff. Jan. 1, 2017; 2013, 261:9, eff. July 1, 2013; 2008, 303:4, eff. July 1, 2008; 2004, 147:5; 246:3, 4; 2002, 222:4; 1993, 79:1. (Add. 25). This fact militates against any argument that this Court incorrectly interpreted the legislature's intent. See State v. Etienne, 163 N.H. 57, 76 (2011) ("A further indication of the legislature's intent not to abrogate the longstanding requirement of reasonable necessity is found in the actions the legislature has undertaken in the wake of Warren. The legislature has amended RSA 627:4 twice since Warren, and the amendments did not vitiate our holding that the deadly force provision implicitly required reasonable necessity.... The legislature's decision not to amend the pertinent provisions of RSA 627:4 in light of Warren indicates the legislature's adoption of our long-standing interpretation of the statute."); State v. Moran, 158 N.H. 318, 323 (2009) ("If we had incorrectly construed the statute in [our earlier interpretation thereof], the General Court would presumably have clarified the text in the course of the five subsequent amendments."); State v. Deane, 101 N.H. 127, 130, 135 A.2d 897 (1957) ("The statute on which this repeated practical construction has been placed by the Bench and Bar, has been re-enacted by the Legislature without change in RSA 502:24, and constitutes a legislative adoption of its prior judicial interpretation." (quotation omitted)); 2B N. Singer & J.D. Singer, Statutes and Statutory Construction § 49.5, at 35 (7th ed. 2008) ("[P]rinciples of stare decisis weigh heavily in favor of a judicial interpretation, since the legislature has power to change the law from what a court has construed it to be." (quotation omitted)); id. § 49.5, at 107 ("If the legislature has amended portions of a statute, but has left intact the portion sought be construed, the legislature has declared an intent to adopt the construction placed on the statute by the administrative agency."); id. § 49.10, at 142-44 ("Where action upon a statute or practical and contemporaneous interpretation has been called to the legislature's attention, there is more reason to regard the failure of the legislature to change the interpretation as presumptive evidence of its correctness. Likewise, legislative action by amendment or appropriations with respect to other parts of a law which have received a contemporaneous and practical construction may indicate approval of interpretations pertaining to the unchanged and unaffected parts of the law.").

Moreover, the Court should be particularly cautious of disturbing the holdings in Fenniman, Hounsell and their progeny given the current legislative activity surrounding the issue. In the most recent 166th Session of the General Court, House Bill 153 "relative to circumstances under which police officer disciplinary records shall be public documents" was introduced.(Add. at 20-21). In pertinent part, the amended legislation, entitled "AN ACT relative to circumstances under which police officer disciplinary records shall be public documents" seeks to amend RSA 106-L by inserting the following:

106-L:5-a Certain Records Subject to Right-to-Know Law.

I. In this section, "disciplinary records" mean complaints, charges or accusations of misconduct, replies to those complaints, charges, or accusations, and any other information or materials that have resulted in final disciplinary action.

II. (a) Upon completion of an investigation, any record which includes a finding that a law enforcement officer subject to this chapter discharged a firearm which led to death or serious injury shall be a public record under RSA 91-A.

(b) Any disciplinary record in which there has been a final adjudication of a matter involving a law enforcement officer subject to this chapter who was found guilty of sexual assault as defined in RSA 632-A, or in which there was a sustained finding of dishonesty by a law enforcement officer including perjury, false statements, filing false reports destruction, or falsifying or concealing evidence, shall be a public record under RSA 91-A.

III. Nothing in this section shall limit the ability of a public agency or public body, as defined in RSA 91-A:1-a, to withhold the names, addresses, dates of birth, and other personal information of victims or other private persons where disclosure of such information would constitute an invasion of privacy under RSA 91- A: 5.

2019-0374h, February 7, 2019 (Add. at 21). The legislation clearly presupposes that the categorical exemption applies to records of the type sought herein and confirms the court's interpretation of the legislative history as discussed in Fenniman.

Moreover, the bill contemplates release of certain of these records only upon final adjudication such as in an arbitration proceeding. As of the date of this memorandum the bill had been Re-referred. Add at 22-23; Senate Journal 17, 23 May 2019 at 537 (explaining rereferral to committee because of an unidentified "ongoing court case" and "the need for further examination of the consequences of the language.")

"Stare decisis is the essence of judicial self-restraint." Quintero, 162 N.H. at 539. This Court should exercise particular restraint from reframing the legislature's intent in RSA 91-A:5, where the legislature has amended the statute myriad times over the years and is currently legislating a bill pending before it involving this very issue. This Court should allow our tripartite government to work as it is intended and refrain from overturning its long-standing precedent and rewriting RSA 91-A:5.

C.TO THE EXTENT THAT THIS COURT FINDS THAT SOME BALANCING OF INTERESTS IS NECESSARY, THE MATTER MUST BE REMANDED.

To the extent that this Court reaches the conclusion that some balancing of interests is necessary, it must remand the case for further consideration by the trial court. Here, because the trial court's decision was "based exclusively on the 'internal personnel practices' exemption, and it is not evident that the court considered whether any of the disputed materials were exempt as 'personnel ...files whose disclosure would constitute invasion of privacy'" consideration of that issue must be done on remand. Reid, 169 N.H. at 527. At that time, the parties would address the various factors inherent in the balancing test including, significantly, the weight and impact of RSA 105:13-b(III) (confidentiality of police personnel files).

CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, Salem Police Relief, NEPBA Local 22 respectfully requests that this Court AFFIRM the order of the Trial Court.

AMENDED ANALYSIS

This bill changes the definitions of solar energy systems and wind-powered energy systems for purposes of determining assessed value for real estate exemptions. The bill also allows cities and towns to adopt a property tax exemption for electric energy storage systems.

HB 496, establishing a committee to identify the requirements needed to commit New Hampshire to a goal of at least 50 percent renewable energy for electricity by 2040.

Re-refer to Committee, Vote 5-0. Senator Bradley for the committee.

This bill establishes a committee to undertake an analysis of the requirements that would have to be considered if New Hampshire were to commit to the goal of providing at least 50 percent renewable energy for electricity only to residents and businesses by the year 2040. Legislation is currently moving forward to increase the percentage obligations under the Renewable Portfolio Standard, or RPS. The committee felt this bill was not required at this time.

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENTS AND ADMINISTRATION

HB 113, relative to qualifications for and exceptions from licensure for mental health practice.

Ought to Pass, Vote 5-0. Senator Cavanaugh for the committee.

This bill allows experience as a master licensed alcohol and drug counselor to qualify as experience for licensure as a clinical social worker, clinical mental health counselor, or marriage and family therapist. The bill also clarifies the mental health license exemption for psychotherapy activities and services of psychologists and master licensed alcohol and drug counselors. Implementing this change will make it easier for individuals to qualify for licensure with relevant experience, while maintaining appropriate safeguards for the industry.

JUDICIARY

HB 153, relative to circumstances under which police officer disciplinary records shall be public documents.

Re-refer to Committee, Vote 5-0. Senator Carson for the committee.

This bill would make certain records concerning law enforcement officers subject to the right-to-know law. Due to the ongoing court case regarding this matter and the need for further examination of the consequences of the language the Committee asks for support in the motion of Re-Refer.

HB 155, relative to procedures for determining and disclosing exculpatory evidence in a police officer's personnel file.

Re-refer to Committee, Vote 5-0. Senator Carson for the committee.

This bill would require a determination of whether information in a police officer's personnel file constitutes exculpatory evidence and would allow a police officer who has information determined to be exculpatory evidence in his or her personnel file to have an opportunity to challenge the disciplinary finding. The Committee asks for support of a Re-Refer motion in order to allow for the completion of the relevant ongoing court case prior to making a determination about this language.

HB 189-FN, establishing an exemption from criminal penalties for child sex trafficking victims.

Ought to Pass, Vote 5-0. Senator Chandley for the committee.

This bill exempts juvenile victims of human trafficking from prosecution for certain conduct chargeable as a criminal offense which was committed as a result of being trafficked. The bill also allows juvenile victims of human trafficking to petition to vacate a delinquency adjudication resulting from participating in conduct that was the direct result of being trafficked. Implementing this change will help these children feel safe coming forward, giving them more support and opportunity to escape from their captors without fear of prosecution.

The question is on the adoption of the Consent Calendar. Adopted.

HB 631, establishing a deaf child's bill of rights and an advisory council on the education of deaf children.
